2005 METROBUSINESSNET ANNUAL CONVENING

Old Dogs, New Tricks: Business-Civic Organizations and the New Regionalism

FEBRUARY 17-18
HYATT REGENCY MIAMI
MIAMI, FLORIDA

Learn how leading business-civic organizations in North America are reshaping the regional development agenda.

Understand how business leadership groups in major metropolitan regions are:

- Attracting and retaining talent
- Anchoring technology industries in the urban core
- Addressing the jobs-housing mismatch
- Revitalizing urban neighborhoods through double-bottom line investment funds
- Building strategic regional coalitions with government, community, and advocacy groups
- Restructuring to address issues of regional competitiveness

METRO BUSINESSNET

MetroBusinessNet is a national action-learning network of regional business-civic organizations. It is demonstrating how business leaders can work collaboratively through civic institutions to develop and implement business practices and public policies that support sustainable economic development on a metropolitan scale. MetroBusinessNet is managed by FutureWorks (www.futureworks-web.com), a strategy consulting firm focused on regional institutions of economic, workforce and civic development.
